JULY 27, 1972

A WINNING COMBINATION in the big Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club horse show on Sunday were Sally Bennett and her spirited horse, Constant Confusion, who rode off with several prizes, including first in the very difficult Jumping Stake Class. Sally is a member of the English championship team of Region 6 of the California State Horsemen's Association, a title won in competition in 109 degree weather in Fresno over the July 4 weekend. For more pictures from the Sunday show at the Trail and Saddle Club, which drew about 200 entries from all over Northern California, see page 8.

THE TOWN CRIER

THE ORGANIC GARDENER

... in Carmel Valley

By LEE HALL

The Purist

We have suggested that the beginning organic gardener would probably profit from using some chemical fertilizer the first year and possibly a little the second year. But that by the third year, no chemical fertilizer should be needed.

The purist organic grower flinches at the term "chemical fertilizer." If you are one who rebels at the thought of using even a moderate amount of chemical fertilizers for a limited period, it is possible to pursue a totally organic policy the first year. Remember, however, that plants use inorganic ions for their growth, and they aren't too fussy about where they originate.

The first year organics (mulch, compost, etc.) turned under usually contain a lot of woody fibers. Bacteria and fungi break these down underground. But, for bacteria to work, they need large amounts of nitrogen. Unless the compost is especially rich in high nitrogen organics such as blood meal, cottonseed meal or rabbit manure, the bacteria will take nitrogen from the soil to decompose the woody components.

As an illustration, we turned some horse manure under a plot we were developing and six months later the soil tested lower in nitrogen than soil with nothing added. This is not to say that the nitrogen was lost; it was eventually returned, doubled, when decomposition was complete. In this case, we added a little ammonium phosphate at $1.00 for 20 pounds. In two weeks, bacteria broke the ammonia down to furnish the extra nitrogen needed.

If we had followed a purist approach, we would have paid $2.50 for 10 pounds of blood meal and accomplished the same thing.

The same situation existed for phosphorus, which was low. The ammonium phosphate furnished the phosphorus needed. However, we could have bought ground phosphate rock for several dollars additional in cost.

The point we make is that we have no dispute with the purists who want to go 100 percent organic from day one. It can be done, but it costs more.

The first year, especially when the soil is still cool in the spring, phosphorus is not available from the organics to get little plants started. We cut a little furrow on either side of the seed rows and sprinkle a phosphorus (like ammonium phosphate) in the furrows and cover it over. This gives the small, shallow roots the phosphorus needed to get them past the "sit still" stage.

As the plants grow and send their roots deeper, there is usually enough phosphorus available for the bigger plant. After the first year, we do the same thing with decomposed chicken manure, which is very high in phosphorus.

We are purists on furnishing potash to plants by using wood ashes, which are about 10 percent potash.

The main reason we recommend a little cheating on organics the first year is because we are sold on the program. It would be tragic for the new organic gardener to become disenchanted with organic gardening because of the cost involved in going all the way the first year.

However, if you are thinking about pot plants or a very small flower bed only, by all means go organic from the start. But even a "kitchen garden" is going to be expensive the first year.

BOB WOOD REPORTS...

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD, ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

There has been a lot of mixed reaction to a pair of bills on education now before the Legislature and I thought you might be interested in learning a little more about them. They involve a multi-million dollar program to permit 4-year-olds in kindergarten and to upgrade the education of youngsters in the primary grades of California's public schools.

The program is the result of a study authorized by the State Board of Education, and is being pushed vigorously by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Proponents note that the concept also has the approval of the Governor.

Under the program, parents could send youngsters to kindergarten as soon as they reach the age of 3 years and 9 months, one year younger than now is permitted. The goal is to cut down on mental retardation which many experts feel is the result of a lack of educational stimulation at an early age.

This is the area, of course, where the primary controversy lies. Many of my colleagues feel that the program will turn out to be little more than a very expensive babysitting program, and will be of benefit only to those precocious children who may be ready for the rigors of the schoolroom. Even given the possibility of 3-year-olds in kindergarten, many believe that the parents should be allowed the prerogative of holding the child in kindergarten until they feel he or she is suitably prepared for the more demanding and intense atmosphere of the primary grades.

One of the major goals is to reduce the ratio of pupil to adult in the early grades from 1 to 30 to 1 to 10 by the use of teacher aides, including parents. Many of us, however, view the program with some reservation as an unproven and undefined approach to a far-reaching complicated problem.

Enuf for now... BOB WOOD

Dear Editor:

I am happy to enclose my check for the renewal of my subscription to your newspaper. I have been reading it for the last year with much interest. I think it is outstanding in its unbiased coverage of matters of public interest in your area. I also thoroughly enjoy Mr. George Smith's beautiful photographs.

I first visited your area in 1945 and have been there often enough since to be familiar with some of the changes that are taking place. For one who has spent most of his life in various parts of the northeast section of our country with our overcrowded, underplanned communities and wastage of good farmlands and spots of natural beauty, it saddens me to see what is happening in California.

We had a natural disaster here last month which points up some of the discussion going on in Carmel Valley about building in the 100-year flood plain. The severe floods which hit the Pittsburg, Harrisburg and Wilkes Barre areas have never occurred before at this time of year. Normally floods occur in late winter as a result of heavy rains combined with melting snow. This year Hurricane Agnes dumped inches of water and then doubled back to dump much more. In Harrisburg our new $2,400,000 Governor's mansion was flooded half way up the first story while the site of the old mansion, torn down a few years ago, now a parking lot, remained high and dry. Most of us think remote threats of nature cannot happen in our lifetime but the Governor has lived in his new house less than a year.

I am sending you a copy of the first section of our Pittsburg morning newspaper of June 26 which may give you a little more news about the flood than was available on the west coast.

Yours sincerely,
MAXWELL D. MILLARD

PERISHING FLOWERS

Blossoms yawn, disclosing their colors as they sashay beneath the boughs of weeping willow trees.
Zealous rainbows streak the meadows with the poems and songs that flowers sing;
dancing to the melodies,
leaves rustle their crinoline skirts in colors of ripened harvestry;
spring showers change to thunder storms and ruthlessly tarnish the limpid leaves;
colored paper, damp and runny, drifts chastened to the ground to swim in stormy harmony.
Dusk approaches...
one heeds the warning and prepares for sudden launching;
once vibrant flowers fold their petals
in pale shades of death;
wan and weary they turn off their lights for the descending night.

In the next few issues we'll try and give you an idea on how to prepare yourself and horse to jump.

Lesson 1. The anatomy of the Horse.

The horse is divided into three parts.

The head and neck. Here is the balance. The shoulders, forelegs and the barrel. This is the support. The hindquarters -- This is the motor.

If the rider is in control of the hindquarters he is in control of the horse. How does this come about? It is achieved by correct use of the rider's legs, seat and weight. The seat and weight influence the muscles that control the hind legs. If used correctly and with the rider's legs, they help draw the horse's hindquarters under him -- (thus giving him a greater ability to drive forward). Meanwhile the rider's hands guide and direct. A horse, to be organized enough to jump, must be altogether. As must be his rider.

The rider must have his legs on the horse (from 2 inches above the knee to the ankle). The seat must be down into the saddle - chest square and back supple. The hands are about the width of the body (straight line from the bit to elbow) thumbs up and fingers leorning the reins. There must be elasticity.

When the horse is ready he will have his head on the vertical, pall relaxed, jaw relaxed and will be chewing on the bit. His hindquarters will come and be slightly under him. This is never accomplished correctly through biting up or over-

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club will sponsor a rugged hike for those willing to climb with hands and feet in Julia Pfeiffer Burns Park on Saturday.

Participants should meet behind Brinton's at 9 a.m. with lunch. Only lug-soled boots should be worn.

On Saturday, Aug. 5, the Ventana Chapter will host a bike trip along Cachagua Road to Comsat. The 10-mile ride will start on the upper Cachagua Road, 14 miles east of the Village, at 11:30 a.m. Bikers should bring lunch, which will be eaten at picnic tables by the store at Princes Camp.

The group will then tour Comsat and see a movie of its operations.

Trip leader is Jeff Knorr, 372-1539.

Since the Outlook's article extolling the beauties of the upper Carmel Valley-Cachagua-Jamesburg area in general, and the Zen retreat at Tassajara in particular, there has been a sharp increase in the number of calls for help received by the Carmel Valley Mobil Station.

Harry Gien has been sending his AAA tow truck out on an average of twice a day to pull out cars which failed to make the grade on the extremely steep, narrow, barely passable road to Tassajara.

Apparently some readers failed to read the multiple warnings included with the article: the trip is not recommended for cars with automatic transmissions. Only cars with excellent brakes and tires and a full tank of gas should venture up the hazardous route, and then only during daylight hours.

Drivers should be prepared for rocks on the road and numerous one-way stretches where one side drops off abruptly for several hundred feet.

And a final word of caution: visitors are not welcome unless they have made reservations in advance.

Ma Bell must have been up early this morning. Valley residents going out at dawn to pick up a morning newspaper discovered their copies of the new Monterey telephone book unceremoniously deposited in the middle of driveways or along the side of the road in the general vicinity of mailboxes.

We know of at least one copy that was found sprawled half-open -- either the way it landed when it hit the ground, or the way it was left by a dog after he finished playing with it.

Undoubtedly this system saves time and money on delivering phone books in rural areas to begin with. But in terms of service to customers, who may not beat their dog to the phone book, or may be away and not know their new directory awaits them in a ditch by the side of the road...?

THE NAME IS DIFFERENT, but everything else is basically the same as what has been discussed for many months in this preliminary map for the proposed development of the eastern 134 acres of the Odello ranch. The Monterey County Planning Commission accepted this map, and a general description of the project, yesterday, and set

August 9 as the date for a public hearing on the preliminary plan. As shown here, the developer envisions a 300-unit resort hotel at the far eastern end of the property, on the right of the drawing, and 327 residential units clustered in several areas between the hotel and Highway 1, at the center of the map.

The land west of Highway 1 is shown undeveloped, in anticipation of its eventual purchase by the State of California, OLAF (the Odello Land Acquisition Fund) and tax increment bonds backed by Monterey County for inclusion in the State's park reserve system.

Odello Ranch now becomes 'Carmel Lagoon Reserve Redevelopment Project'

Planning Commission to consider new concept on Aug. 9

There was something very familiar about the preliminary plan for development of the eastern 134 acres of the Odello ranch which was received without comment by the Monterey County Planning Commission yesterday and set for public hearing on Aug. 9.

The preliminary map and accompanying text outlined a proposal for a 300-unit hotel and 327 clustered residential units to be located on the land east of Highway 1. Except for a new name — it is now designated the "Carmel Lagoon Reserve Redevelopment Project" — the layout for the area is the same as what was presented by the San Francisco architectural firm of Sasaki-Walker for the eastern half about a year and a half ago.

The lagoons and open areas near the Carmel River, the circumferential road hugging the base of the Fish ranch slopes and the groupings of "low" and "medium" density residential units remain intact.

A major change from the original plan, of course, is that the 155 acres lying west of Highway 1 is shown blank on the new map, reflecting the intention of the State of California and OLAF, with a major assist from tax increment bonds backed by Monterey County, to purchase that part of the property for $1.7 million as a state park.

Presentation of the preliminary plan yesterday was another step in the complex legal process involved in establishing the area as a redevelopment project under state law.

If the planning commission approves the preliminary plan after the public hearing on Aug. 9, the plan will then go to the board of supervisors, sitting in its capacity as the county's redevelopment agency.

Beyond that, it will be necessary for the planning commission and the supervisors to approve a final redevelopment plan before the project can become official and the county can authorize the sale of tax increment bonds to help purchase the western half of the ranch.

At yesterday's meeting, Assistant County Counsel Henry Jorgensen told the commission that the written description of the preliminary plan was "rudimentary" but met legal requirements. At the time of the public hearing, he said, the commission will decide whether or not the proposal conforms to the Monterey County General Plan.

According to the statement accompanying the preliminary map, the purpose of the development is to "eliminate blighting influences, protect against a substantial decline in the coastal environment, and provide for a proper utilization of land so as to contribute to the public health, safety and welfare."

Another stated purpose is to "stimulate and attract private investment, thereby improving the county's economic health, employment opportunities and tax base."

Village Master Plan study to get underway next month

"PLANNING REALLY means trying to capture the personality of a community . . . what the community will tolerate, not what it can accommodate," Monterey County Planning Director Ed DeMars told the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

"For that reason," he continued, "planning is still an art and not a science."

DeMars' comments came as he discussed the implications of the pending master plan study for the Carmel Valley Village area.

The planning director said that a meeting should be called early next month to start work on a comprehensive plan which will delineate future commercial development in the Village area.

The study has been authorized by the board of supervisors, and will be conducted by a citizens' committee working with the county planning staff, the county road department, and a subcommittee of the planning commission composed of Edward Marcucci, Vaughn Parsons and Charles Kramer.

"I would hope we can get into this plan without any preconceived notions," DeMars commented.

First order of business, DeMars said, will be for the planning staff to update information contained in a 1965 economic study of the Village area. That report declared that about 35 acres of commercially-zoned property in the Village should be considered "surplus" and turned to other use, such as garden apartments.

SINCE THAT TIME, however, some of this land has been developed, and DeMars said that the staff will try to determine just how much undeveloped land remains in the commercial area.

"In my own personal opinion, the first thing you're going to have to decide is the road situation," he added.

DeMars also gave the chamber of commerce members meeting at Rancho del Monte a rundown on the county's outline for riding and hiking trails which was approved by the board of supervisors last year.

With 90 percent of the county's population concentrated in about 10 percent of the land area, including the Monterey Peninsula, DeMars said that plans for riding and hiking trails must be given special attention.

"Some of our options are being closed because development is coming in," he said.

Because the county does have a master plan for riding and hiking trails, he said, it was possible to have recreation trails included in the final subdivision maps for Riverwood at the mouth of Carmel Valley, Valle Carmel on Meadows Road and Creekside, a development planned next to Toro Park Estates.

DeMars showed the chamber of map on which a hiking and riding trail is marked along the Carmel River to connect with Los Padres Forest. Another recreational trail runs along the ridge between Highway 68 and Carmel Valley.

Contestants will take their cars to the track on Saturday at noon for a final inspection and to have their cars impounded until the Pre-Race Parade to be held on the track Sunday a.m. at 11:45.

Appearing in the parade will be Mary Patton selected by the Valley Lions as 1972 Race Queen and Diane McKenzie who is the Soap Box Princess. According to Race Chairman Charlie Gansel and Race Director, Dick McKenzie, Sunday's race will determine the Monterey County winner who will receive a $500.00 savings bond, the Roller Chevrolet Trophy, and the privilege of competing at Akron, Ohio August 26 in the 1972 All American Soap Box Derby for $30,000 in scholarships.

There is no admission charge for this the second annual event sponsored by the Carmel Valley Lions Club so plan to attend and support the Valley boys who have spent long hours . . . building a dream.

MRS. GARY KITT was the hostess at the dinner meeting of the Carmel Valley Lionettes held last week at the White Oaks Restaurant. Doris introduced as her distinguished guest speaker, Valley artist, Virginia Ford who gave an informative demonstration of her artistry in action with the end results an oil floral - Daisies in a Kettle - won by Mrs. Jack Black. The Soap Box Derby Food Booth was the main topic of business with Mrs. Jack Black named chairman assisted by Mrs. Philip Wright.

Guests for the evening included Margery Trapkus of Carmel, Laura Granito, Seaside, and Ada Leach, mother of Lionette, Mrs. Earl Gooden. The belated June birthdays of June August and Doris Kitt were celebrated as well as the current July events of Beth Hitchcock and Ruth Hall. The door prize was won by Virginia Ford. Everything seemed to be coming up daisies Thursday evening including the trim on the new blue collection pot presented with much good natured kidding and fan fare to the new Tail Twister of the organization, Helen Ecker.

CARMEL VALLEY Soap Box Derby Race drivers, Duane Marzi (left) and Geoffrey Lee received a smiling stamp of approval on one of their homemade entries from Mary Patton who was appointed queen of the 1972 event by the Carmel Valley Lions Club. The Second Annual Gravity Grand Prix Soap Box Derby will be held on July 30th at 12:00 p.m. at the Laguna Seca Track. Duane is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudi Marzi and Geoff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee.

NEW SPACE had to be made in the trophy case belonging to the Monterey County Sheriff's Department following competition by the Pistol Team in a recent shoot at Concord. Competing against 600 other entries, John Davison and Paul Keene finished 5th and 6th in individual competition. Team wise they scored 1194 out of a possible 1200 against 151 other teams. Trophies were won by Everado Rodrigues, Travis Pendergrass - and a second trophy by Davison for the highest individual target in the event.

TRAVELING ABOUT the United States, Mexico and Canada in their mobile home for a year or two are the future plans of Brookdale Drive residents, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Fraser -- plans revealed following Dr. Fraser's recent announcement of his retirement as Monterey County's Public Health Director. Dr. Fraser accepted his present post in 1966 following the retirement of Dr. Myron Husband. He had been the assistant director since 1961 after twenty years of Army duty. A native of St. Louis, Mo., Dr. Fraser graduated from Washington University Medical School in that city. While stationed at Ford Ord he was chief of professional services and chief of medicine. He also worked briefly at Agnews State Hospital and Soledad Correctional Facilities. The Valley-ite's retirement will become effective on or about January 1.

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS said good-byes recently to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kurlfinke who have moved to an adult community called Wikiup Greens in Santa Rosa (which sounds as though it will furnish a whole new field of topics for Diane's free lance writing!). Their home on Paso Hondo has been sold to A.H. Schmidt of the Defense Language Institute.

TIM NIELSEN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nielsen, West Carmel Valley Road, creates his 1972 model Soap Box Derby race car which he hopes will win for him the Sunday event at the Laguna Seca Race Track a $500.00 savings bond, the Trophy, and a trip to Akron, Ohio in August to compete for the $30,000 in college scholarships.

PADRE PARENTS OFFICIALS

The weather was beautiful in Carmel Valley during the past week, with a most comfortable 72 to 75 reading on the thermometer each day at the local weather office at the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department building.

But it stayed dry - no measurable rain at all since the first of the month. Last year at this time there had been .02 of an inch in July.

Germany builds great luxury cars. BMW is the one that shows how much you know about them.

One thing you always get as standard equipment with any German luxury car is a great feeling of prestige.

However, if you're more interested in a different kind of prestige, the kind that comes with knowing you own the best engineered luxury car for the money, you should be considering the new BMW Bavaria.

The Bavaria is fast. It will cruise all day at 120 mph with no strain. Thanks to an amazingly efficient smooth and turbine-like ohc engine — the most advanced of its kind in the world.

The Bavaria is sure. Its rear wheels never change camber no matter how rough the road. Thanks to the most sophisticated suspension system ever conceived.

BMW's new Bavaria is also exceedingly comfortable with interior appointments and fittings that are tasteful rather than decadently plush. The whole emphasis is on go instead of show.

If you're shopping for the world's most prestigious car — a true Germany luxury car, better see every model. Then, if you can recognize a great buy in luxury engineering, you'll find there's really only one choice.

Valley riders win honors at Horse Show

THE TROPHIES ARE IMPRESSIVE . . . and so was the horsemanship displayed by pretty Liz Gibson, a member of the Trail and Saddle Club, as she rode her horse, Gentle Ben, to an over-all first in points for English riders in Sunday's Kiwanis Club show. Here the petite teenager, who lives in Salinas, receives her trophies from Otto Huebner, left, and George Pullman of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club.

THE SPACIOUS, SHADED GROUNDS of the Trail and Saddle Club at the end of Garzas Road provided ample room for Janice Cranston and Jeannie Rainer to exercise their horses between events.

PRIZE-WINNING FORM is shown by Sally Bennett and Constant Confusion as they effortlessly clear a jump.

ONE OF THE BEST RIDERS here or anywhere, Carmel Valley's Sue Sally Hale, clears a hurdle at the Kiwanis Club horse show. Sue Sally and Brigadoon won the Jumpers class for 18 and over and took second in Working Hunters.

NO SLOUCH in the saddle, four-year-old Richele Ehrich trotted off with a fourth place ribbon in the Lead Line, 6 years and under, class.

GINA HALLE was one of the Western participants in the all-day horse show at the Trail and Saddle Club sponsored for the third straight year by the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club.

There is a Difference in Beef Grading

When your reputation has been built on perfect-eating meat, you don't compromise with the methods that assure top quality... At Safeway, every steak, and every roast of beef is USDA Choice Grade. Some coin fancy different sounding names for the lower grades they sell, but, at Safeway, every cut of beef is USDA Choice Grade. It is the grade only awarded to meat that will consistently deliver tender, juicy, flavorful cuts. Every purchase that you make at Safeway is guaranteed to please you or your money back.

There is a Difference in Meat Trimming

Safeway's method of trimming meat gives you more good-eating meat on the table for your money, because excess fat and bone are cut off before the meat is weighed. The meat on every Safeway steak, for example, is all steak meat. The less tender end portion has been trimmed off to be sold at a lower price per pound. In comparing the price of meats, it will pay you to compare the trim as well. You will find that you are way ahead when you shop at Safeway Discount.

THE CARMEL GUN CLUB is presenting its annual turkey shoot on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free and the events feature trap, skeet, pistol and rifle range shooting. A chicken barbeque, hot dogs and beans will be served. The range is located 1¼ miles east on Carmel Valley Road from the Highway 1 turnoff. Club members shown at the range, left to right, Bob Ameil, Joe Parga, Bob Mausem and George Crow, are shooting the overhead Duck Tower.

Upper Valley assessed valuations skyrocket by over 95%

PEBBLE BEACH and the Cachagua-Jamesburg area in upper Carmel Valley registered the sharpest increases in assessed valuation for the 1972-73 fiscal year, according to figures released last week by County Assessor Donald Stewart.

Property values in Pebble Beach jumped 40 percent, from $16.87 million to $23.75 million.

This increase was modest, however, when compared to the whopping 95.22 percent rise in assessed valuation for the Cachagua-Jamesburg area.

For the 1971-72 fiscal year, property in Cachagua-Jamesburg was valued at $1,113,525. After undergoing a detailed review this past year, it has been reassessed at $2,173,850 for the 1972-73 fiscal year, an increase of $1,060,325.

This reflects increasing development of the area, including a recreational-trailer development on part of the Lambert ranch and Featherbow ranch, which is subdividing a portion of the former Parrott ranch into 40-acre parcels.

Reassessment of these areas produced an unexpected windfall for the Carmel Unified School District, which had been told some time ago to expect an increase in assessed property values of approximately 3 percent. The actual increase turned out to be 10.4 percent.

None of these figures include increases in public utility rolls, which will not be completed for another two to three weeks.

Stewart said that Pebble Beach and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club area had last been reassessed in 1967.

"Unquestionably the assessment ratio was further out of line in Pebble Beach than in the Country Club area," he said, "so it had a higher priority, and we put our manpower there."

The County Club section of Del Monte Forest is in the Pacific Grove Unified School District.

Primarily an area of ranches and small vacation homes, Cachagua and Jamesburg properties "have just been lying there without being reassessed for many years," Stewart said.

THE CITY OF CARMEL showed a slight increase of 2.5 percent, going up $689,440 to $27.59 million for the new fiscal year.

Stewart said that property within the city limits of Carmel hasn't been reviewed on a lot by lot basis "for five years or so," although it received a blanket increase last year. "However," he added, "I question if we have the manpower to get in there and do the job this year."

As residents of Carmel Point well remember, that residential area, outside Carmel's city limits, was reassessed a year ago, resulting in substantial increases in property taxes.

Stewart said that portions of Carmel Valley will be in for re-evaluation this year, and his staff is now going over plans to decide which areas will receive their concentrated attention.

The area generally considered the "mouth of Carmel Valley" registered a 14 percent gain in assessed valuation for 1972-73, rising from $5,916,230 to $6,730,675.

These figures do not include the Odello property or Hatton Fields, but encompass an area bounded by Highway 1 on the east, the Carmel River on the south, Via Petra (excluding Hacienda Carmel and Del Mesa Carmel) on the east and the upper limits of Carmel Knolls and Rancho Rio Vista on the north.

New construction of both homes and commercial buildings in this area accounts for almost all the increase.

The new County Service Area No. 59, which will provide fire protection for the mid-Valley as far east as Rancho Fiesta Road, will start off with an assessed valuation of $8,086,075. There are no precise comparison figures available for '71-'72 because the district had not been formed then.

Assessed valuation within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District shows a 3½ percent gain for 1972-73, based on a rise of $378,130 to $11,297,790.

Countywide, assessed value rose $60.5 million to a record total of $661 million, excluding public utility rolls.

Planners undecided about 90 condominium units on Carmel River

By PAT GRIFFITH

ECHOES OF the long Odello controversy sounded through the supervisors' chambers in Salinas yesterday as the Monterey County Planning Commission considered an application to rezone nine acres adjacent to the Carmel River for 90 condominium units.

After a hearing lasting almost two hours, the commission voted to continue further consideration until Aug. 30. In the interim, a subcommittee composed of commissioners Edward P. Marcucci, Charles Kramer, Leon Stutzman and Minnie Prewitt will consult with various county departments on the plan presented by Thomas Schaal, a San Rafael attorney.

Schaal is one of eight Marin County investors who hope to develop the property, which lies between the north bank of the river and the Mission Fields subdivision.

Six of the nine acres were rezoned in 1967 for apartments or transient facilities with a maximum density of 18 units per acre. The other three acres are zoned for residential use.

Schaal is seeking rezoning to Special Treatment with a density of 15 units per acre on the six acres already zoned for multiple family development. The remaining three acres, he said, would be given over to a swimming pool, tennis courts, parking areas and open space for potential ponding.

The condominiums, to be known as Carmel Apartments, would be built on top of seven feet of fill. This would put the first floor of the two-story buildings about three feet above Oliver Road in Mission Fields.

Schaal told the commission that the investors are all members of a Marin golf club and have been regular visitors to golf courses on the Monterey Peninsula for 20 years. None is a developer by profession.

"We have always groused about some of the shortcomings in terms of accommodations," he said. "Checkout time is 12 o'clock, and you can't get in 18 holes of golf..."

AT ONE POINT the group considered buying a motel, he said, but then changed to their present idea of a condominium development clustered around an 18-hole putting green that would appeal to other out-of-town golfers.

He said it would be the group's intention not to put the units on public sale at first, but to offer first chance to members of golf and country clubs in Northern California.

Objections to the plan were raised by a score of residents of Mission Fields, many of whom attended the hearing to protest in person.

Complaints centered on three issues which have been aired at length in the prolonged debates over the proposed Odello development: the question of building on flood plain land, the problem of additional traffic on a congested stretch of Highway 1, and the matter of density in relation to surrounding development.

Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon read a letter from Col. Herman Schull, a director of the Carmel Sanitary

District, expressing the district's "apprehension... on encroachment in the flood plain by land fill."

Schull wrote that failure to provide for an adequate river channel to carry flood waters indicates "an impudent disregard of danger and defiance of the laws of nature."

IN LATER REBUTTAL, Carl Hooper, an engineer with George Bestor and Associates, said that the carrying capacity of the river would actually be "enhanced" by the development because some fill for the project would be dredged from the river bottom, thus making the channel deeper.

Slimmon said the proposal had been referred to the Carmel Advisory Committee and the Carmel Planning Commission. Both groups urged that recommendations made by the supervisors in 1967 that no traffic from the development be permitted to go through Mission Fields be included as conditions if a use permit is granted.

The advisory committee said that 90 units on six acres is "a greater density than desirable" and recommended that the applicant settle on a density somewhere between 60 and 90 units, depending upon economic feasibility.

The Carmel planning commission also stated that the proposed density was "excessive," and urged it be reduced to not more than 60 condominiums.

A letter from Mrs. Tom Houston, president of the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula, said that the League supports flood plain zoning in Carmel Valley and feared that the development would increase the flood danger to surrounding houses.

Several residents of the area protested the plan on the basis that traffic along Highway 1 has already reached the "saturation point" and that the condominiums would tower above their low-lying homes in Mission Fields.

Robert Gillmore stated that the thought of more traffic through Mission Fields is "unbearable to those who live there," and that he was "shocked" at the suggestion to use fill "because every foot puts the Carmel Sanitary District's new plant in more danger."

Bill Brown, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, said the CVPOA strongly opposed using ST zoning and favored applying flood plain zoning to the area.

Ken McGinnis, representing the Rancho Rio Vista Property Owners Association in opposition to the plan, showed the commission pictures of the 1958 flood which inundated the Carmel River Inn and the proposed development site.

ALSO APPEARING in opposition were Robert R. Robertson of the Carmel Area Coalition, Arthur Black of the Carmel Citizens Committee, and Pat O'Malley, Mrs. Glenn Schneider and Mrs. Esther Vicino.

Schaal said that his group would agree to whatever conditions on access the planning commission wanted to make.

He suggested that one possibility could be for cars to leave the development via Oliver Road and Rio Road, where they would have the benefit of a traffic light for turning onto Highway 1, but enter the development only from Highway 1.

When asked for his opinion, County Planning Director Ed DeMars said that the planning staff had opposed the 18-unit-per-acre density in 1967, and that he still feels the density is too high "based on all considerations."

He added that the situation is different from what it was five years ago, however, because the zoning exists "whether you like it or not."

After some further discussion, Kramer moved for a 30-day continuance to give the staff and planning commission time to study the problems relating to the development.

Marcucci said the subcommittee appointed to study the matter will specifically ask for the assistance of Loran Bunte, the county's flood control engineer, and the road department as it assesses the affect of the project on the immediate area.

Schedule of Carmel Valley hearings

Rancho Fiesta Inc. -- Appeal from Planning Commission's denial of use permit will come up before the Board of Supervisors August 8, 10:30 a.m.

Thunderbird Gardens -- Planning Commission will consider application for rezoning of parcel on Val Verde Drive and Carmel Valley Road on Aug. 9. Lower Valley Advisory Committee will consider development plan and rezoning application on Tuesday, Aug. 1, 8 p.m., in the community room of United California Bank, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

VACATIONS AREN'T always long trips. Frequently during the summer months, people decide to take a day or two-day outing to some fairly close-by spot. Because they are only going to be away from home for a short while, they assume that they can leave their pets to fend for themselves.

"The cats can manage for a day," someone said recently, and left on a Monday morning for a short hop to Fresno. When she hadn't returned by Wednesday mid-day, we began to worry about those cats and drove down to check them out, bringing along some cat food - just in case.

The cats emerged from somewhere around the house and practically leapt all over us as we dished out a hefty plateful of food. If you're familiar with the way cats eat, you'll understand how hungry these two were when we say they "ate like dogs."

People fall into the trap of believing their pets can take care of themselves because the animals appear to be sensible and self-reliant. These two cats are adept at gopher and lizard hunting, frequently bringing their "trophies" home to be admired.

But to think that a hunting cat is hunting because of hunger is a mistake. Ninety-nine percent of our pet cats hunt for the thrill of it. It wouldn't occur to them to actually eat that grisly thing. Dinner is something dished out in a clean dish, accompanied by a nice drink of cool water.

(This reminds us that many people who keep cats as "mousers" or "ratters" often mistakenly half-starve the animal in the belief that a hungry cat hunts more proficiently. Absolutely untrue. The stronger, healthier and better-fed the cat, the better hunter he will be. Besides, you don't really want your cat eating gophers and birds and mice, do you? All sorts of undesirable parasites and illnesses can be caught by eating these creatures.)

PET DOGS, especially, are almost totally at the mercy of their owners to provide food. We have domesticated our dogs so utterly that many of them have lost whatever wolf-inherited hunting instinct they ever had. In addition, we train them to leave other animals alone - cattle, chickens, pet rabbits - even cats are taboo. You certainly can't expect a dog to rustle up his own dinner.

It is generally true that missing a day's food will not harm a healthy dog or cat. Even missing several days' rations won't inflict any serious harm. But being deprived of clean water for only a day, even when the weather is moderate, can be dangerous. On a very hot day, keeping a dog or cat from fresh water constitutes cruelty.

Whether or not an animal will "miss" its food if deprived for a day is a moot point. But remember that domestic dogs have come to look upon feeding time as the high spot of the day. Eating has become almost an activity for dogs (as it is to so many people) and they become agitated and nervous at mealtime if that chow isn't forthcoming.

IF YOU PLAN to be away for a day or two and feel the best thing is to leave your pets at home rather than board them or take them along, there are certain minimum things that should be provided for their comfort.

It is cruel to leave an adult housebroken dog confined indoors if it is accustomed to relieving itself outdoors. Grown dogs will go through agony to avoid soiling indoors and even more agony when nature finally forces them to obey her call. If you can't safely permit your dog access to both outdoors and indoors while you're away, ask a neighbor to let the dog out or walk it at least twice a day (morning and night). Mature bitches have been known to voluntarily withhold urine for 15 hours or longer to avoid wetting indoors - and this can have a deleterious physical effect on bladder and kidneys.

Both cats and dogs, indoor or out, must have access to a supply of clean water. Leaving a shallow, tip-able pan isn't enough. Provide a generous, stable container that will last until you return.

Dry cat food and dog kibble now make it practical for you to leave sufficient food while you're away. Even if your pet doesn't generally like to eat plain dry food, at least you know he won't suffer from hunger in your absence. If he gets hungry enough, he'll eat dry food.

Canned foods will spoil quickly and attract flies and ants. They should not be left out for longer than it takes the animal to eat them - 15 or 20 minutes.

Provide toilet facilities for cats left indoors and make provision to walk dogs confined in the house.

Any pet left outdoors for more than a few hours must have access to some form of shelter. In the summer, the vital element is shade. If you tie or chain a dog out where he cannot escape the sun and heat, you are courting disaster. Dogs overheat quickly in hot weather and are subject to heat prostration. If this occurs and there's no one at home to render first aid, the dog will convulse and die.

Safety is another factor when you leave your pet. It is irresponsible to simply pile into the car and take off, leaving a dog loose and on his own. He may try to follow you; he may wander off and be stolen or hit by a car, or get into a dog fight.

It is only a little better to chain or tie a dog outdoors.

Unless you have an escape-proof fenced yard or kennel run for a dog with a dog house or other shelter, or a cool, secure garage or utility room in which to leave a cat, it's best not to go off and leave them. Under proper conditions, with food, water, protection and shelter, a dog or cat can do very well without you for a day or two. But don't take a chance that you might return to find tragedy has struck.

OUTSTANDING SECRETARY. Mrs. Gloria Tripp of Carmel Valley, civilian employee at the Army Combat Developments Experimentation Command on Fort Ord, was recently presented with a Department of the Army commendation for her outstanding performance of duty as Secretary to CDEC's Scientific Advisor. It was presented in Headquarters ceremonies by CDEC's commander here, Brigadier General Ray Ochs. With the award came a quality step increase in pay and a pleasant check as a bonus for special efficiency. Mrs. Tripp, formerly of Carmel, has been with CDEC for six years and in civil service since 1961. This is not her first such award and it will doubtless not be her last. (US Army Photo)

Biggest swimming jamboree ever!

THE BIGGEST JAMBOREE in the history of the Carmel school district's summer swimming program went off with remarkable dispatch Friday morning at the Carmel Valley community pool. With students from both Carmel and the Valley and ALL classes on deck, teams competed in relay races that varied from a fast medley by the swimmers class to a running-across-the-pool event for beginners. Here one winning group receives its first place ribbons from pool manager Ken White, standing on the chair. Instructor Rick Powers is at the far left.

COMPETITION is hard work, but it seems to agree with Jenny Ziegler, who found something to smile about as she backstroked the length of the Carmel High School pool.

EMERGENCIES

Chief Chip Collins reports not one fire call during the past week.

There were only two emergency calls. Last Thursday at 11:30 p.m. Mrs. Ruth Maddock of Paso Hondo was taken to the Community Hospital as a medical emergency.

On Friday the emergency unit responded to an accident at Carmel Valley Road and Village Drive. A motorcycle operated by Richard C. Busic of Carmel collided with an auto which pulled out into the intersection. His injuries were not serious.

CVPOA will meet next Thursday

The proposed rezoning of a parcel on Val Verde for "Thunderbird Gardens" will be among the matters to be discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the CVPOA next Thursday.

The board meeting, to which the public is invited, will be held at the United California Bank community room, in the Rancho Shopping Center, starting at 8 o'clock.

Other matters on the agenda include a discussion of the Rancho Fiesta development, G zoning, plus committee reports.

Sunset views:

'Last Chance Week'

By FRANK RILEY, Cultural Director

THIS MIGHT be billed as "Last Chance Week."

Tonight, Friday and Saturday are the final three performances of "Twelfth Night," the Forest Theatre Guild production at the Forest Theatre beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Tonight, the last of the basic Bach series concerts billed as "The Baroque and Its Heirs" is performed at Sunset Center Theatre at 8:30 p.m. On Friday, Saturday and Sunday (the Sunday concert is at 2:30 p.m.) repeats of Concerts Nos. 1, 2 and 3 will be presented to close out the 35th Annual Festival season.

ON SATURDAY evening the "Bachania" exhibit in the Marjorie Evans Gallery will close.

And, on Sunday, the foyer exhibit arranged by the Festival will come down.

This should give you a clue as to how you might hustle around a bit if you do not want to miss out on a whole group of goodies.

On the other hand, don't get the idea that Sunset Center and the Forest Theatre are about to close down. Far from it!

ON SUNDAY at 1:30 p.m., for example, the Watsonville Band parades from Sunset Center to Forest Theatre. Then follows up with a "Concert in the Park." The marching unit has won many awards and will be worth watching. The band, under the direction of Gonzalo Viales, is also very accomplished musically; and the program of old-time concert favorites will be a delight to hear. Everyone is welcome -- there is no charge for admission. Get to the Forest Theatre by a short stroll up Mountain View from Ocean Avenue. Other programs, including many Carmel "firsts," will be presented each Sunday through September 10th.

Then, no sooner is the Bach Festival concluded than Hidden Valley Music Seminars moves into Sunset Center Theatre for their annual series of six orchestral and choral concerts. Conductors John Waddell and Michael Zearott return for the 1972 series. Each concert begins at 8 p.m. (please note the time!) on each Sunday in August with two additional concerts on Friday and Saturday, September 1 and 2.

ALSO HAPPENING at Sunset Center is the very ambitious and challenging workshop-seminar to be conducted by Friends of Photography during the coming month. Most of the sessions for this program are for enrolled participants only; but a unique exhibit, which is part of the event, will be open to the public in the Marjorie Evans Gallery from August 5 through 26.

My Gosh! What's this about "last chance?" Looks like just as many "first chances!" Better keep Sunset on your permanent schedule!

"YOU'VE GOT A FRIEND," Carole King's big tune, is one of the popular requests when STAN CAREY (no relation) takes the mike Tuesday nights at THE HATCH COVER. And you discover you've got a friend, and a talented one at that, in this entertainer who makes your Tuesday night one to look forward to at this popular night spot.

Originally from Long Beach, Stan now calls Scotts Valley home and comes down every Tuesday to fill this slot at Mike Tancredi's popular nitery. Variety is the keynote of his performances and his solid musical background (B.A. from U.C.S.B.) shows through in a style that's appealing to young and old alike. His "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" is a definite crowd-pleaser and he slides with ease into the spirited Mexican wedding song, "La Bamba."

Though it was at Santa Barbara that he started his serious study of music, Stan sang a bit in high school where his early claim to fame was when he did five TV shows as a member of THE YOUNG AMERICANS. Since that time he has had a rock group, "Pumphouse Canyon," in San Luis Obispo, has played with several trios, and has cut several tapes. One of these days he's going to hit the big time and then you can say, "Hey... he's the guy we heard one of those Tuesday nights at THE HATCH COVER."

BIG NAMES COME INTO THE VALLEY more often than you might think. Just for openers, Art and Lois Linkletter have been frequent visitors at John and Aileen Bulmer's LOS LAURELES LODGE. They all got acquainted when the Bulmers owned the Alpine Motor Inn near Alpine Meadows and the ski-enthusiast Linkletters frequented the Inn as well as the nearby slopes. In fact, when John started building town houses at Alpine, the Linkletters bought the first. Before the Alpine Motor Inn, the Bulmer's had the Squaw Valley Inn and many of their ski friends of those days are their golf friends of today. Between rounds they gather around the pool at LOS LAURELES where the bikini-watching is even better than the old days of stretch-pants watching on the slopes.

PLAZA LINDA, IF YOU REMEMBER YOUR SPANISH, means "pretty patio" and the Diaz' are serving out there on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights (weather permitting). Tasty tostados and all those other authentic Mexican dishes are right at home in this garden setting. Inside or out, PLAZA LINDA is a most pleasant dining experience.

DEAN DIAZ SR. says he really appreciates the concern of people of the area when they learned of the recent accident that has temporarily incapacitated him. And he can't say enough good things about the firemen and others who were the first ones on the scene and gave first aid.

LA BAGATELLE HAS BECOME A FAVORITE RENDEZVOUS of those who used to enjoy the splendor that was "old San Francisco" in the day of the "Old Russian Tea Room." Mrs. Vernon has renewed many acquaintances of those "grand old days" and there is no end to the stories that are recalled these days at LA BAGATELLE. Stories that go back to the first location of the Tea Room in the old Paul Verrier house at 1001 Vallejo Street on San Francisco's Russian Hill and in its later location on Sutter Street. Ask Mrs. Vernon about Isadora Duncan, Maynard Dixon and Mischa Elman, to name just a few of the great names that frequented the area. Mischa's sister lived just across the street and, when the windows were open, patrons of the O.R.T.R. were treated to music by Mischa, one of the world's greatest violinists. Just think of the fun a P.R. man could have with that today... "Music By Mischa."

DR. JOHN FORBUSH WAS THIS YEAR'S CHAMP at last weekend's "The Lowery" at RANCHO CANADA. This 10th annual invitational golf classic was chairmanned by Paul Verga and awards and prizes were presented by Lowery himself, at the end of play on Sunday. A Saturday night dinner dance with de luxe Prime Rib of Beef and dancing to the music of Mike Marotta's Centennials was the social highlight of the weekend event. Net proceeds of the event went to the Ed Lowery Charity Fund and the tournament brought together a fine low-handicap field as well as higher handicap players.

Events of this type are handled with ease by Nick Lombardo and his staff at RANCHO CANADA, where tournament play has become a continuing program and where golfers and diners alike are always ready to go back for more.

Theater review:New Circle Players stage 'Theatre of Tomorrow'

Hopefully, the Circle Players will find a home in Carmel, and if not here, somewhere in the Monterey Peninsula area.

A provocative sampling of what they propose to do was staged at the Circle Theatre in Carmel Saturday night - a benefit performance, so it is described, that will be repeated again this Saturday night.

The talent appears to be abundant, the dedication overflowing, and not least of all, as they describe it themselves, "the idea of theatre as a medium for stimulating ideas as well as entertainment."

A company of 11 young people, largely brought together through the efforts of Tim Thompson, the new Circle Players are bringing refreshing and uninhibited attitudes towards theatre, who at the same time hope to embrace theater-goers with a new concept of what the stage is all about in the 1970s.

Typical of the talent which the new Circle Players project is rather dazzlingly exemplified in David McCharen, who helped make the Elaine May skit "Adaptation" - an exhilarating experience. A student-teacher of improvisational theatre at Monterey Peninsula College, McCharen is the focal point of a satirical picture of man from birth through growth to death, oddly but dramatically set in a television game show environment.

Others in this cast - Mike Smith, Dorothy Razez, Michael Neilond and Rick Mannheim - also perform so effortlessly but so effectively that the comedy and the satire and the message become artfully combined as complete entertainment.

A second playlet, "Next" by Terrence McNally, features Don Porter and Velma Westbrook - an improbable skit at an Army induction center with a female medical examiner - is fully in the spirit of the Circle Players' intention of using "humor boldly to bespeak the mad disparities of modern life . . ." There were also many mad improvisations, many mad comments on our customs, social and otherwise, some voiced, other just dramatized, and no obscenities for obscenity's sake.

In addition to those in the plays, the Company also includes such other attractive personalities as Rita Abair, Barbara Brussell, David Drakos and Lisa Lang.

A lively, provocative kind of theatre. The question is, will local lovers of theatre - traditional, modern and futuristic - support. Hopefully, they will. A kind of theatrical future-shock, it's quite likely to bring a whole new attitude to the stage as it has to politics and education, to mention two, inspired by the revolt of youth against outworn and decadent aspects of the establishment. Potters of Firsk exhibit at Museum of Art

The creations of the POTTERS OF FIRSK will be on view during the month of August at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey. The artists will be introduced to members of the museum and their guests at a preview reception on Friday, August 4, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The exhibition will be open to the public from Saturday, August 5.

The Balcony Gallery will be the background for the diversified output of the Firsk Potters of Carmel. The name comes from a science-fiction short-story by Jack Vance which amused the leader of the group, Carmel High School instructor Lloyd Baskerville.

Many of the artisans were former students who were fired up by the idea of creating beautiful things from the clay around them, a truly organic experience. Much of the material is dug up by the potters themselves from clay deposits on Partington Ridge and in Carmel Valley. Each area's special deposits of iron, manganese and other minerals contributes towards making the colors unique.

The exhibit will include porcelain as well as underfired objects done in the Raku method. Many potters find the Japanese method which is to put the article directly into the fire and then to dry it by wrapping it in leaves or grass after glazing it, to be a total involvement in the art of pottery making.

Every Thursday, at 11 a.m., a member of the Museum Docent Council will conduct a tour of the exhibits. This is open to the public and there is no charge. If any organization wishes to bring a large group at any other time, an appointment may be made by phoning the Museum office at 372-5477.

The Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. from Tuesday through Friday, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Bob Booth to star in Studio's musical 'Company'

Bob Booth will have the leading role in "Company" when that multiple-award-winning Broadway musical hit is presented at the Studio Theatre Restaurant on August 10th.

He will be playing the musical's eligible bachelor whose married friends are trying to push him into matrimony. He is ever so chummy with and adored by both the husbands and wives of his circle, but, despite their matchmaker urgings, he stubbornly sticks to single blessedness -- even though he is 35, and, as everybody knows, that means he's pushing 40.

With its songs by Stephen Sondheim and its book by George Furth, "Company" won the Tony Award and the N.Y. Drama Critics Circle as Best Musical during its first Broadway season and drew capacity audiences for 706 performances in 1970 and 1971.

With its depiction of life among New York's restless swinging couples, as seen through the eyes of an observant bachelor friend, "Company" was called by critic Douglas Watt of the N.Y. Daily News "America's first musical treatment of nerve ends." Henry Hewes in the Saturday Review described it as a "distillation of the essence of contemporary urban life."

Donna J.R. Conne and Brett Moore (Sarah and Harry) will be seen as one of the couples on the bachelor's calling list. She is a housewife obsessed with dieting and, just as she has sworn off food, her ex-alcoholic husband tortures himself by insistently mixing drinks for his bachelor guest that he won't himself touch, and their major pastime is practicing karate with each other.

Mary Payne and George Gray III (Susan and Peter) will play a pair who turn on together. Laurie Armstrong and Thom McCleister (Jenny and David) a couple who get a divorce together so that they can still feel free to live together. Monica O'Reilly and Frank Silva (Amy & Paul) a pair who finally make it legal together after a long fright of the altar. Zelma and Allan Weinfield (Joanne and Larry) will portray a couple with an inactive marriage -- they don't do anything together.

When Bobby-the-bachelor asks three of these husbands to tell him how they really feel about being married, they reply with one of Sondheim's cleverest songs entitled "Sorry-Grateful." In another lilting song, the five women of the circle sing a song of maternal concern for the lonely life of their friend, "Poor Baby," which fades into a scene in his apartment showing him not to be lonely at all as an enchanting airline stewardess consoles him in his bedroom.

He has two other once-in-a-whiles to stave off loneliness, and to enable him from making any final commitment. Susan Dorsey, Mary Cooke and Leslie Weinfield (Marta, Kathy and April) portray these ladies in waiting, whose frustrated reaction to their involvement in Bobby's dilatory dating game is the lively send-up trio, "You Could Drive a Person Crazy."

Zelma Weinfield has the chance to sing Sondheim's most famous song in this show, the biting and satirical salute to the rich, conspicuously consuming "Ladies Who Lunch." Sondheim's whole score has been called "a leap ahead of anything being written nowadays for stage musicals, with their tuneful melodies and inventively witty lyrics."

Bill Asp is the director who is meshing the humor, literacy and poignancy of this musical hit, Robert H. Evans, Jr. is designing the scenery and Judy Evans will be doing costumes and Greg Granoff will be in charge of the multi-mooded musical score that matches the edgy quality of the urban-tough story.

JEANNIE M. HUGHES and Frank Silva are seen here in just one of the many fine musical numbers in "Dames at Sea" now playing at the Studio Theatre. This whopping entertaining take-off on Musical Movies of the 30's can be seen until Aug. 5. Reservations may be made by phoning, 624-1661 or 373-7438. (Photo by Steven Gann)

ULTRA-MODERN in concept and design, this is an architect's drawing of the new building in Carmel Valley for SABL School.

Concludes successful summer camp program

SABL School to open in new quarters in Valley

THESE YOUNGSTERS attended the 1972 summer camp program at the Carmel Valley Trail & Saddle Club in Carmel Valley.

Sabl (Seek, Ask, Believe & Learn) Summer Camp has just concluded a five week program at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club. The program, in its 9th year and under the direction of Nancy Bottaro, consists of an intensive morning of academic activities interspersed with tennis and riding lessons. The afternoon usually is filled with swimming or excursions. This summer the Cachagua, Point Lobos and the Salinas Rodeo made for exciting group outings.

A five day trip to Bear Valley (Alpine County) is planned for Sabl's sixth and last week of summer camp. Once established at a base camp in the Sierras the group of elementary aged children will hike, swim, ride and fish. An overnight backpack, a raft trip down the Stanislaus, and simple mountain climbing will allow optional experiences for the children.

In September Sabl School will begin its fourth school year in a new hexagon building at the Carmel Valley Racquet Club. The regular program established through PACE, a non profit foundation, provides a unique one-room school experience to thirty children ranging in ages 6 to 14. The non-graded school staffed by a full-time and two part-time teachers gives individualized instruction in the regular academic areas along with fieldtrips to subject related points of interest.

The emphasis of Sabl in the words of Dr. Joseph Dionne, member of the school's board of directors, is "to maximize the potential of each child by improving his productivity and life dimensions." As Sabl grows through its summer and school year programs it continues to do just that.

Help for parents of retarded children

AN AGENCY geared for the needs of parents with retarded children is actively operating on the Monterey Peninsula, according to Joe Gulla of Carmel, a psychiatric social worker with Monterey County Mental Health.

The agency, Loma Prieta Regional Center for the Mentally Retarded in Pacific Grove, is part of a state-wide organization of 13 regional centers which were established in 1965 with the passage of Assembly Bill 691.

Loma Prieta is operated by Hope for Retarded Children and Adults, Inc., a private non-profit agency under contract with the State of California Department of Public Health.

The Loma Prieta concept is to provide parents of retarded individuals with on-going fixed point referrals for diagnosis and counseling and a place of entry for service and return if the need appears.

Joe Gulla is on the Loma Prieta Regional Board of Directors as a representative of Gateway Center, an activity oriented program in Seaside for older retarded children.

All inquiries to Gateway Center are referred to Loma Prieta, Joe says, and then depending on the parents' request, are perhaps referred back to Gateway.

Counselor for Loma Prieta is H. Meredith McNutt, who recently moved to Monterey from Carmel.

Meredith, who has her B.A. from UC Berkeley and her MSW from Fresno State

School of Social Work, has been with Loma Prieta for one year.

AMONG THE KIND of cases Meredith McNutt has handled this year is the situation of the army officer who contacted the center after his transfer to Ft. Ord. He had a 14 year old retarded son in an institution in the East and wanted him to be nearby. Meredith found a placement and when the officer was again transferred, Loma Prieta helped him find another placement near the father's new station.

In another instance, Ms. McNutt was contacted by an elderly couple in their 70's. They had married late and had one child, a 29 year old daughter, Betty, who has Down's Syndrome. The daughter had always lived with them, the parents told Ms. McNutt and while there were no specific problems at this time, they were concerned about what would happen to Betty after their death.

With the advice given by Meredith, the parents made a new will with the help of their attorney, adding a clause to nominate the Director of Public Health as guardian for Betty in the event of their deaths, a procedure which was approved by the director after seeing information on the case.

Ms. McNutt urges parents who need referral advice about a retarded individual to register with the Loma Prieta Center, telephone 375-2284.
